Opioid Treatment Program for Low-income Young Adults Hayley Feuer (Graduate student), 2021 Abstract: The purpose of this project was to develop an opioid treatment program, identify potential funding sources, and write a grant application for the Los Angeles Centers for Alcohol and Drug Abuse (LACADA) in downtown Los Angeles. Findings from the literature review indicated that mental health disorders, age, history of a substance use disorder (SUD), gender, poverty, unemployment, and education level were the risk factors most commonly associated with opioid use disorder (OUD). The literature review also revealed that medication-assisted treatment (MAT), individual therapy, group therapy, and case management were the most beneficial treatment approaches for OUD. The proposed program will employ those treatment approaches to help consumers achieve and maintain sobriety and improve mental health. The California Wellness Foundation was chosen as the funding source. Actual submission and/or funding of the grant was not a requirement for completion of this project. Implications for social work practice are discussed.

The Professor Is In Karen Kelsky, 2015-08-04 The definitive career guide for grad students, adjuncts, post-docs and anyone else eager to get tenure or turn their Ph.D. into their ideal job Each year tens of thousands of students will, after years of hard work and enormous amounts of money, earn their Ph.D. And each year only a small percentage of them will land a job that justifies and rewards their investment. For every comfortably tenured professor or well-paid former academic, there are countless underpaid and overworked adjuncts, and many more who simply give up in frustration. Those who do make it share an important asset that separates them from the pack: they have a plan. They understand exactly what they need to do to set themselves up for success. They know what really moves the needle in academic job searches, how to avoid the all-too-common mistakes that sink so many of their peers, and how to decide when to point their Ph.D. toward other, non-academic options. Karen Kelsky has made it her mission to help readers join the select few who get the most out of their Ph.D. As a former tenured professor and department head who oversaw numerous academic job searches, she knows from experience exactly what gets an academic applicant a job. And as the creator of the popular and widely respected advice site The Professor is In, she has helped countless Ph.D.'s turn themselves into stronger applicants and land their dream careers. Now, for the first time ever, Karen has poured all her best advice into a single handy guide that addresses the most important issues facing any Ph.D., including: -When, where, and what to publish -Writing a foolproof grant application - Cultivating references and crafting the perfect CV -Acing the job talk and campus interview -Avoiding the adjunct trap - Making the leap to nonacademic work, when the time is right The Professor Is In addresses all of these issues, and many more.

Block Grants U S Government Accountability Office (G,U. S. Government Accountability Office (,2013-06 Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO evaluated the effects of new proposed funding allocation formulas for the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health (ADAMH) block grant, focusing on: (1) how well the formulas would equalize available service levels for at-risk populations across the nation; and (2) whether the formulas would provide similar funding levels for states with similar abilities to pay for their own programs. GAO found that: (1) the current ADAMH formula allocates over twice as much federal funding for states with high levels of program support, while the proposed formulas would increase federal funding in low-service states and narrow the disparity by 25 percent; (2) wealthier states currently receive 44-percent higher allotments than poorer states, while the proposed formulas would increase funding allocations for the poorest states by 35 percent and decrease allocation for the wealthiest states by 33 percent; (3) the proposed formulas would provide that states with equal abilities to pay would receive similar allocations; and (4) mental health allocations are already targeted to states with the lowest ability to pay, but the proposed formulas would equalize allocations among states with similar abilities to pay.

Grant Proposal for a Psychoeducational Support Group for Families who are Affected by Substance Misuse Lenora Jones,2012 Abstract: The purpose of this project was writing a grant proposal to obtain funding for a psychoeducational support group for families who have a loved one who is a substance user in the South Los Angeles and Crenshaw Districts. Families in New Directions was selected as the host agency to house this program, based on its demographics and geographic location. The grant writer explored potential funding sources to locate the best possible source that fit the goals and objectives of this project. This support group is designed to increase family awareness of substance use and provide a support system and supportive therapy to decrease feelings of guilty, depression and anxiety that the family experiences due to the misuse of substance(s). This project should improve the overall well-being of the target population. The actual funding and/or submission of this grant was not a requirement for the successful completion of this academic project.

How to Write a Successful Research Grant Application Willo Pequegnat, Ellen Stover,2013-03-09 The Department of Health and Human Services has identified Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS) as the foremost public health problem in the United States. The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) report that, as of December 31, 1994, there were 441,528 documented cases of AIDS in this country, and the number is increasing. AIDS is an illness characterized by a defect in natural immunity against disease. Many more individuals are known to be infected with Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) but do not have symptoms or the defining characteristics of AIDS. The incubation period for AIDS may range from 1 to 10 or more years in adults and 6 months to several years in children. Infected persons appear to be capable of transmitting infection indefinitely, even if they remain asymptomatic. In order to increase the number of minority investigators conducting research on HIV infection and 1 AIDS, NIMH conducted a 3h-day technical workshop for minority investigators on July 24-27, 1990, in Fairlakes, Virginia. University-based research programs were asked to nominate investigators who were selected on the basis of a referred 10-page prospectus for a proposed research project. This procedure was used because NIMH wanted to be sure that the prospective investigators were established in a research environment that would pr

An Integrated Treatment Program for Individuals with Co-occurring Mental Health and Substance Use Disorders Sandra Ceballos Luna, 2010 Abstract: The purpose of this project was to write a grant proposal and identify funding sources for designing an integrated treatment program for individuals with cooccurring mental health and substance use disorders. The grant will be used to educate and provide mental health services to potential clients in Los Angeles County. A literature review was conducted in order to research and investigate the best way to assist and educate clients on the risk factors associated with co-occurring mental health and substance use disorders. The grant source chosen was the California Wellness Foundation. Securing the grant was not a thesis requirement.

Funded! Richard Hoefler, 2017-06-02 Funded! leads readers from knowing nothing about writing grants to having a complete grant proposal. Based on personal experience and the experiences of dozens of professional nonprofit grantwriters, students learn about writing grants by completing exercises at the end of each chapter, moving from finding funding opportunities to submitting the completed proposal. The book covers every essential grantwriting topic: finding funding, writing needs statements, finding or developing evidence-based programs, developing logic models, writing evaluation plans, describing implantation plans, budgeting, sustainability planning, and submission to the funder. Overall, it is an invaluable resource that provides flexibility for instructors, students, and professionals to learn about grantwriting in a variety of settings and formats.
